Set on the edge of the Nar Valley, West Norfolk this unique gatehouse is one of the finest examples still standing. Built in the 11th century the gatehouse survived disilusionment but did not escape completely Cromwell's guns. It stands an imposing 4 stories in height dominating the surrounding countryside. Included in the extensive grounds is our 16th century house and a medieval barn, there is a dungeon and tunnel beneath the barn leading to the rear of the property. Easily accessible for the largest of vehicles, no immediate neighbours, a secluded private location ideal for filming.
