Interior

At the wild heart of the Scottish Highlands, this 10,000-acre estate is elegant and impressive with a eclectic mix of high end buildings.

The main house features many original features and unique rooms, including a dining room with an apex glass ceiling. There are more receptions rooms throughout and lots of large bedrooms, including four poster beds in the upstairs of the main property.

he Estate Lodge has been carefully restored to pair modern essentials with Highland charm. Here, seven bedrooms sleep up to 14 guests, with spaces featuring wood panelling, four-posters, and period furnishings. At the Green House, the tone is modern-botanical; three rooms (two double, and one twin) sleep six guests in light, airy interiors. And at White Cottage, a smaller group (up to four, in two bedrooms) can find tranquillity at the water's edge.
