Interior

A lovely cottage on an ex-farm, providing versatile filming opportunities as it has both original features and a modern extension. Parts of the cottage date back to 17th Century with exposed beams and stone fireplaces still in place. There are two living rooms, one of which is in the extension with stunning windows and bi fold doors out to the surrounding countryside. The kitchen is small and rustic with a tiled floor, very in keeping with the age and style of the property.

There are several bedrooms, with exposed beams, original wooden flooring and just generally are interesting shaped rooms for filming. There are both a bathroom and a shower room upstairs.

Exterior

The property is spread over 12.5 acres and has so much on offer. As well as rolling welsh countryside, rivers and ancient woodlands, you will also find several barns and outbuildings.

There is an old wooden barn with a hayloft, numerous metal barns in various states.

Amongst the grounds you will come across a steep field behind the house covered in gorse, a flat field with wildflowers, hardstandings for many vehicles and a river with swimming and fishing access.
