Features:

Interior

It has the street level floor which is the main bar area, with lots of seating areas, textured walls, and a photo booth. Stylistically it is appealing for film. Then downstairs there is an event space which is empty most of the time. There is a bar down there too, big enough for a substantial film crew, and able to be black out as no windows. There are four toilets at the property - two on the basement level, and then two on the first floor above the main pub. There are also three more floors above the pub that are currently disused and derelict, but spacious and can be made safe for a film crew.
