

LON6422 Semi Detached Edwardian Home For Filming

This quirky, colourful period property is packed with individual character - mosaic tiled floor, stained glass, feature cast iron fireplaces for filming and video shoots

LON6422

Semi Detached Edwardian Home For Filming

This quirky, colourful period property is packed with individual character - mosaic tiled floor, stained glass, feature cast iron fireplaces for filming and video shoots

Location: North London, London, United Kingdom

Within the M25: Yes

Categories: Period Houses | Semi-Detached Houses | Eclectic

Features:

Interior

This quirky, colourful period property is packed with individual character - mosaic tiled floor, stained glass, feature cast iron fireplaces, serving hatch between the kitchen and dining room and original split levels with steps in and out of rooms. The 1930's style kitchen has steel Crittal patio double doors leading out onto a herringbone brick patio area, and the original stained glass French doors in the dining room lead to a seating area outside under a leafy pergola. Upstairs there are four bedrooms; two have original fireplaces, and one is being used as an office. The house bathroom is vintage in style with pale blue tiles and red cast iron roll top bath.

Exterior

A four bedroom semi-detached Edwardian location house built in 1910. There's a large south-east facing garden, with a generously-sized outbuilding at the back. This building has two rooms - a bedroom and vintage-style kitchenette connected with reclaimed Edwardian timber doors and a white tiled shower room. The side passage is sloped all the way to the garden, with an outside tap. There's a children's treehouse above another seating area and electric plug sockets outside in two parts of the garden

