History

Built in the 1500's, and extended in the 1600's, the farm buildings were originally built for the production of Stallington Smoked Cheese for the Smith-Child family, then owners of nearby grade-1 listed Hall, and for housing farm workers. Over the course of the next 400 years the property was developed and used for different purposes, always involving farming, and always sympathetically modified. Today, the property is combined into a single L-shaped building, conveniently split on the ground floor.
