Interior

A beautiful cinema from the early 1900's that offers lovely spaces that are modern but in keeping with the properties age. The reception area features a ticket booth and leads to a cafe and bar area. There is a large impressive staircase from here that leads you to the theatres. The main theatre is large with red velvet folding seats, a stage and is painted a striking deep blue. There is a smaller screening room with three rows of light grey leather seats. There is a small office with a door leading out to the rooftop of the property.
