Interior

High rise apartment available for filming or photo shoots on an upper floor of Trellick Tower.

Trellick Tower is a perfect example of a 1960's brutalist Tower Block. Designed by Erno Goldfinger (of James Bond fame) the building has been given grade 2 listed status to protect its place on London's landscape. The Tower Block resides in Chelsea Kensington Borough and is privately managed.

The apartment is on the end of the building and has incredible 3 dimensional views over London:- Swiss cottage, The wheel and Notting Hill area, and because of all the glass around the corner of the Tower, the flat is flooded with natural light.

Living Room* 12 by 20 with white ceiling and coloured painted walls* old looking Danish furniture and a few vases - easy to change for your style.

Bedroom - 12' by 16

* painted in a colour

* a double bed

* two vintage chairs

Bathroom - small with a bath tub.

There is not much furniture or possessions in the flat, so it's something of a blank canvas, and very easy for film makers to create their own ambience.

Previous Film Projects

1; Living room, bedroom and balcony were used for Tulisa "Sight of You" video

2. The landing was used for storage and lighting when Rude Boy Food was filmed in the kitchen. 3. The balcony was used for the program Behind Closed Doors where interviews were filmed.

4. The apartment has also been used for time-lapse photography, and Paddington Bear film (where Paddington knocks on the door of a high rise apartment)

Exterior

Balcony on the 22nd floor with great views all over London.
