Interior

This lovely Georgian house was once an 8 bedroom Hotel and it has been converted back to a 6 bedroom house. Downstairs there is a large bedroom over looking the sea with a fire place and a stone floor. There is a sitting room just over from this with the same views from another bay window. There is a further living room within the property. There are two Kitchens, the main one has exposed beams, wooden cabinets and an island. The kitchen has dark worktops and a black range cooker to match. The second a further kitchen with a smaller cream range cooker. Upstairs you will find several more bedrooms. On the first floor some of these rooms have stone walls, some of which are whitewashed. On the second floor there is a a bedroom, bathroom with roll top bath and a further sitting room. This area has a quirky angular ceiling making it a unique space for filming. There are great views from all windows including see views out front.

Exterior

There is a driveway suitable for three cars out the front of this property which faces directly onto the sea. The back garden has a lovely patio area with a raised deck and wooden Jacuzzi built into the deck. There is a further decking area, outbuilding used as storage and lots of mature plants and shrubbery providing a secluded feel in the outdoor areas. There is a lovely glass covered well at the french door entrance providing a lovely and unique filming feature.
